Life after PhD - Where do people work?

The PhD-forum at the Department of Biosciences in collaboration with Biostruct invites to a spring seminar-series about life after the PhD. People that have taken a PhD in life science, and now work outside of academia come and tell about their experience. What have they done after the PhD, where do they work, and how did they end up there? What kind of skills apart from the scientific background has been valuable to them?

Program:

12.00 Welcome – coffee and cake

12.15-12.45 Talk by Trine Rounge – Cancer Registry of Norway

12.45-13.15 Tage Torstensen – Inven2

Trine Rounge has her PhD from Department of Biology, under the supervision of Kjetill Jakobsen.

Tage Torstensen has his PhD from Department of Molecular Biosciences, under the supervision of Reidunn Aalen.

All from Department of Biosciences and Biostruct are welcome, and we encourage our master students to come.
