

Slavic Corpus Linguistics: The Historical Dimension

Tromsø, Norway, April 21–22, 2015

UiT The Arctic University of Norway (Faculty of Humanities, aud. E-0101)

Day 1: Tuesday, April 21
0830–0900	Registration
0900–0905	Eystein Dahl, Director of the Department of Language and Linguistics Opening
0905–0915	The organising committee Practical information
0915–1000	SESSION 1 (Chair: David Birnbaum) Hanne Eckhoff The TOROT launch
1000–1030	Barbara Sonnenhauser Orthography as a window to diachrony
1030–1100	Sergey Say Corpus as a tool in real-time socio-linguistics: the spread of an innovation in the texts of Russian 19th-century writers
1100–1130	COFFEE BREAK
1130–1215	SESSION 2 (Chair: Aleksandrs Berdičevskis) Invited talk: David Birnbaum A synthetic theory of digital edition
1215–1245	František Martínek Peripheral Czech modal verb + infinitive constructions
1300–1415	LUNCH (Storkantina: The university canteen)
1415–1445	Time to set up demos/posters
1445–1510	DEMO/POSTER SESSION-1 (Chair: Leonid Iomdin): three-minute ads Ruprecht von Waldenfels Reconstructing functional change based on a parallel corpus: The rise of DO+Genitive in North Slavic Włodzimierz Gruszczyński and Maciej Ogrodniczuk The electronic corpus of the 17th and 18th century Polish texts (up to 1772) – aims, methods, current state, problems and prospects for development Maciej Eder and Rafał L. Górski The use of stylometry in historical linguistics: a case study in recent diachronic change in Polish Joanna Bilińska, Witold Kieraś, Magdalena Derwojedowa Conjugate, decline and spell like years ago. A corpus-based morphological analyzer of 19th century Polish Julia Kuznetsova and Alexander Rubin Russia in the Twentieth Century: the Corpus Linguistics Perspective Marija Lazar Parallel Historical Corpora – a New Method in Standardization Research? Hanne Eckhoff Queries and annotation in the TOROT
1510–1630	DEMO/POSTER SESSION-2: walkaround (location: E0101 and E0103)
1630–1700	COFFEE BREAK/walkaround (location: E0101 and E0103)

1700–1730	SESSION 3 (Chair: Tore Nessel) Aleksandrs Berdičevskis, Alexander Piperski Using historical data to define regularity
1730–1815	Invited talk: Leonid Iomdin A Brief History and Current State of the Russian Deeply Annotated Corpus
1900	Conference dinner (Rå Sushi, Skippergata 16)
Day 2: Wednesday, April 22
0900–0945	SESSION 4 (Chair: Hanne Eckhoff) Invited talk: Roland Meyer A variationist analysis of relativizers and subordinators in Middle East Slavic
0945–1015	Vladimir Plungian and Anna Urmanchieva The perfect in Old Church Slavonic: a corpus-based study in grammatical semantics
1015–1045	Ilja Seržant Animacy-driven Differential Object Marking in Russian. Diachrony.
1045–1115	COFFEE BREAK
1115–1145	SESSION 5 (Chair: Roland Meyer) Silvia Luraghi and Erica Pinelli The loss of referential null subjects in Russian: what subordinate clauses can tell us
1145–1215	Mirjam Zumstein Problematic iže: co- or subordination, that's the question
1215–1245	Iliana Krapova and Tsvetana Dimitrova On the syntax of possession in Old Church Slavonic (on the basis of historical corpora)
1300–1415	LUNCH (Storkantina: The university canteen)
1415–1445	SESSION 6 (Chair: Pavel Petrukhin) Łukasz Jędrzejowski On the origin and the development of infinitival wh-complements in the history of Polish
1445–1515	Valery Solovyev Frequency-oriented diachronic approach to the study of prefix variation in the aspectual system of the Russian language
1515–1545	Ekaterina Mishina On the study of the verbal aspect system in Old Russian and Old Church Slavonic
1545–1615	COFFEE BREAK
1615–1645	SESSION 7 (Chair: Tore Nessel) Anna Ptentsova On part-of-speech attribution and grammatical tagging of Old Russian krivo
1645–1715	Maria Ovsjannikova Today's arguments are yesterday's circumstantials: a corpus-study of Russian valency patterns
1715–1800	Invited talk: Pavel Petrukhin The periphrastic form 'byti + active present participle' in the history of the Russian language
1800–1805	Closing remarks
1815	Walkshop in the hills (conditional on good weather)